Kunzman's Dahlias

3 Farms, Devoted Entirely to Dahlias

NEW ALBANY, IND.

How to Handle and Grow Dahlias

A SUNNY, open location,—soil matters little. Spade well and deeply (when fit to work) and fine thoroughly. When soil has become warm, plant the tuber horizontally, about 6 inches deep and 3x4 feet apart if soil is rich, or 2x3 feet, if soil is poor. Do not water when planting, and never sprinkle your dahlias; soak the soil thoroughly about every 7 or 10 days, during very dry weather; also when in bloom.

Keep the top soil stirred to prevent weeds, and when plants are too large to do this, mulch the soil with waste or leaves of any kind. When plant is a foot or so high drive a stout stake about 6 inches from the plant to it to, as it grows, with "rag" or soft twine. Also, about that time, if you want bushy plants, not so tall, cut out the tops, leaving about 3 joints. Fasten your label to the stake. If you want extra large bloom, remove all but the main flower-bud on each branch, and water with liquid manure, but any "high-pressure" cultivation makes the roots harder to keep over.

Cut the blooms very late in the evening or early in the morning; "sing" them by holding the ends of stems over a gas flame for a moment or two, or, putting them in about inches of steaming hot water for a few moments (do not let steam hit the blossoms), then putting in cold water.

Several days after frost has killed your plants (the roots mature more rapidly after the plant is killed) dig them up, careful to prevent breaking the "necks" of the tubers, cut the tops off (a pruning shear or small saw) within an inch of the clump and store away. Do not leave a long stem to induce rot, and do not let lie around, they will dry enough in storage.

If possible, store in an old-fashioned cellar, which is generally somewhat damp and cool. If you have no such place available, put them in a paper-lined box and cover all over with damp (not wet) earth, sand or, best of all, peat which can be bought at any large agricultural dealer for 5 cents per pound, or so. Then store the box in as cool, moist a place as you can find, where the temperature does not go below freezing.

Examine the roots about January 1st and about March 1st and if too dry, moisten the earth or peat somewhat; if any rot appears, cut it out thoroughly and dust the cut place with powdered sulfur.

When ready to plant out, use a strong knife to separate the clumps so that each division made, shall have an "eye." One tuber with an eye is better than many.

If plant lice, aphid, curly leaf, or thrip appear on your plants spray with "Volck," or soap suds and "Black Leaf 40."

Snails and cut-worms often eat the eyes or sprout of a tuber. The best method is to go out very late at night and sprinkle air-slacked lime or tobacco dust around the plant.

If your plant leaves turn white in the fall dust with powdered sulfur on a sunny morning. If your dahlia stops growing after attaining several inches, take up the tuber, wash very carefully and replant it.

Some varieties do not produce tubers readily; if the tuber planted in spring has merely increased in size, cut off the tail end leaving it about 4 inches long, split this lengthwise so as to leave an eye on each split division; dust with sulfur and each piece will produce a plant and a clump.

Any further information cheerfully furnished on request.

First of all, as to our honesty and fair dealing, let us refer you to any reputable grower; or to any merchant in New Albany, or to the Union National Bank of this City, with whom we have done business for 35 years, continually.

While we had some loss by excessive early summer rains, we had the best crop of roots we ever had, and we have an enormous stock stored which will help us to give you the greatest dahlia-buying opportunity ever presented, to commemorate this, our 25th year in this business; added to which we give several seasonal opportunities to buy at half these low prices!

Don't depend on the supply to last entirely through the season; order now.

Let us impress upon you, especially if you are a beginner, that the price of a dahlia does not indicate its real worth. There are hundreds of dahlias on the market at 50c, or even 20c, which are far superior to the average high-priced sorts.

Don't over fertilize!! If you want over-sized exhibition blooms it will pay you to do so, for the sake of getting a prize. But whenever you do force your dahlias you are running a risk of producing weak (though large) roots, which have a tendency to rot over winter. For exhibition blooms, if your soil needs fertilizer, use cow manure (not to touch the root or plant, however), or sheep manure, or a well-balanced commercial fertilizer at or before planting time worked into the soil. In the summer, when buds appear, broadcast a phosphate of some kind, and work into soil.

Many dahlias are planted that never come up because they are drowned; don't water at all unless your soil is very dry, before the bloom-buds start, then you may water copiously. Should it become necessary to water before blooming, soak the soil, then when dry enough, fine the top soil again with a rake or other tool. Never sprinkle Dahlias.

Dahlia Do's and Dont's

DON'T

- Plant in dense shade.
- Plant too close to trees or buildings.
- Plant before frost is out of the ground.
- Pull up the clump at digging time.
- Divide the clump until the eyes begin to sprout.
- Let the tubers dry out and shrivel up over the winter.

DO

- Cultivate.
- Prevent insects with good insecticide (Black Leaf 40 or other mixtures).
- Clean up the garden in the fall. Burn the rubbish. This will destroy all grubs and cut worms.
- Cut off a portion of the stem with the tuber when you divide.
- Examine the roots during the winter.
- Help your dahlias and they will help themselves.

Very Important--Read All

Be sure to read your catalog throughout; it will pay you.

Our roots are especially hardy and rugged, because they are grown in poor soil, without fertilizer or stimulant of any kind. That is why they will grow well and produce profusely wherever planted, in any soil or climatic conditions, whereas, the ordinary roots sent out are grown in rich soil, well fertilized (to produce large clumps) and these produce weak growth and little or no bloom; also, poor roots. Our prices are no higher than the others, why not be sure and get the best. We guarantee our roots.

Our plants are the best and hardiest possible to be had. We take only heel or base cuttings (no top cuttings whatever) from hardy stock. These are grown in cool conditions making them stocky, vigorous, sure to grow and produce. If we produced them like some growers, under forcing conditions, we could produce three or four times the number of plants from the same stock; consequently could make more money at half the price. But, the customer would suffer.

Don't plant your tubers too early. Find out when corn-planting time is in your locality and plant then or later. Do not have your dahlia roots forwarded to you until planting time. We have never made it a practice to exhibit our dahlias in any competition. To do so, we would be compelled to practice high fertilizing, etc., in methods which we do not want to do. As we do not exhibit, we cannot claim prize-winning of any kind. We leave that to our customers, and the 25 odd years of successful business we have experienced proves that our customers are well satisfied. We have hundreds of personal letters telling of their successes in competition. Our vigorous roots pave the way to successful competition.

Our catalog contains the result of 25 years testing of the 10,000 or more different varieties of dahlias originated. We have, during that time, bought thousands of different varieties, which after testing were found wanting and discarded. We follow the same practice today; if a variety is found undesirable, no matter how famous or how many Honor Rolls, etc., it has taken (such, for instance, as American Legion) we discard it. We do not want to fool our customers, no matter how much profit there may be in it. We keep our cellars at a very cool temperature. This prevents the loss of vitality in roots; keeps them firm and full-strengthened. Consequently, no sprouts will appear until after April 1st to 15th; we cannot supply sprouted dahlias before then. However, each tuber will have one or more good eyes. If dahlias are sent out after May 1st, some may have fairly long sprouts on them. As it is not good to plant these sprouts, we generally cut them back. Don't think, if you receive a root with sprout cut off, that it is one we have taken 'slips' from; we never send out any roots which have been on the propagating bench.

When ordering, be sure to tell us when planting time (same as corn planting time) occurs in your locality.

MY OWN SPECIAL

Since this year marks my 25th birthday, as well, as that of the Indiana Dahlia Farms, established by my father, E. L. Kunzman, in 1914, I feel like celebrating it personally, so here goes. "With every retail order for $1.00 or more, sent us postmarked March 2nd, for anything in catalog, except plants or roots marked *, I will include a root of my favorite dahlia, Ruth C. Kunzman, free of charge."

We can send roots any time between January 1st and June 1st, but strongly advise that you have us send them so that they arrive at about the time corn would be planted in your locality.

OUR EXTRAORDINARY LOW PRICES

We want you to compare our prices with other reliable growers and note the big saving you can enjoy by buying from us.

Our enormous plantings give us this advantage; note items below—"An Interesting Sidelight" and "Largest Shipment," for example.

AN INTERESTING SIDELIGHT

Imagine yourself walking on a path, along which are planted, just 1½ feet apart, the best and finest of all dahlias. The row is continuous and you walk all morning and afternoon, 10 solid hours, seeing one plant every second of time; at the end of the eighth day's walking, you will have seen about as many as we plant each season, and you will have travelled about 85 miles!

LARGEST SHIPMENT

The Largest Dahlia Root Shipment Ever Made

The fifty-two crates pictured above compose one dahlia root order, the largest we have ever received and, so far as we know, the largest ever filled anywhere.

The shipment was made last season by Railway Express, and contained 35,500 dahlia roots—or 83½ bushels.

SPECIAL OFFERS

Not only are we giving our customers the lowest quoted prices possible; we are giving them many opportunities to add valuable gifts by observing certain conditions. Turn to pages 21 and 22 for some astounding opportunities for getting free roots and extra value.

WISE BUYING

During a time of deep financial depression is the time to get most value for the amount spent; buy that which will delight you permanently and get many-fold value.

The wisest use for money is to invest it in something which will give you recreation, pleasure and peace of mind continuously. Buy Dahlias once and have them always.

HIGH MORALE

The love and care of flowers has never had an injurious or lowering influence on anyone; instead, it has invariably brought continued and uplifting delight.

The amount spent for one or two visits to the Theatre or Night Clubs would buy a whole season's enjoyment in growing Dahlias.

Did you ever say, "I want this dahlia, but it is too high. I'll wait till next season when it will be lower?" But-don't you realize that the one tuber you buy this year, at say $2.50, gives a clump of 3 or more which will be worth, say $1.50 each, for next year and you have had a whole season's pleasure and a local fame for possessing it?

Before sending in a complaint, be sure you are right; certain seasons cause variations in the dahlia flower. Be sure you are right, then report to him if a mistake has been made.

Cow-manure, sheep-manure or any standard balanced fertilizer is good to use, but do not apply any fertilizer next to the roots when planting. Write to your State Experiment Station for any special instruction; it will cost you nothing.

Almost any "attached" kind of label will sometimes get lost or obliterated; use an indelible pencil, on a clean, dampened (not wet) tuber of each clump and print its name plainly before putting it away. We will enclose 3 full sized such pencils for 25c.

Never store your dahlia roots in drying air; if storage conditions are not somewhat damp and cool, cover roots with soil or peat-moss, and examine occasionally. If drying or shriveling, sprinkle the soil, sand or peat.

Give the surplus roots you cannot use or sell to worthy poor or exchange them for other varieties with your friends. Don't be a "sucker" and let those who are able to buy them get them from you for the "begging" after you've paid good money for them.

Don't use Nitrates of any kind or other highly concentrated fertilizer, nor too much manure, on your dahlias; if you do you will likely kill the plant or grow a big, watery clump which will rot over winter.

Always plan ahead; in this way you will be ready for any event or emergency and enjoy life more by doing so.

Devote your life to saving and amassing money and you will earn dissatisfaction. Devote your efforts to the good of others and you will enjoy a happy life.

The more flowers you cut, judiciously, from your dahlias, the more they will bloom. Never leave old bloom to wither on the stalks; cut them off as soon as they begin to fade and others will begin to come quickly.

Be nice to your dealer and he will be nice to you.

Don't expect the one you buy from to grow your dahlias. If a root with a living eye is sent to you, you are responsible for the growth. If weather conditions are such that you cannot control it, how can your dealer be responsible?

GREEN PLANTS

On receipt of Green Plants, remove all wrappings carefully, except the moss around pot soil. Leave this on, plant immediately in well prepared soil, as deep as possible, so that should an insect cut it off, it will come again from below. Press the soil firmly as possible and shade from hot sun (with light cloth or newspapers) during heat of day, for several days.

If you receive plants grown in the open, which will not have the pot soil on, remove the moss, dip roots into a very soft clay mud (like thick soup) and plant very firmly, soaking the soil before filling the hole with dry soil.

Do you sell Dahlias? If so, send your card or letter-head for our Trade List.

Best Cannas

We believe that if modern Cannas were better known they would be more widely planted. The old fashioned Cannas (shot-plants) were not worth planting, but the modern Canna is a lovely large flower which blooms profusely all summer and Fall, if the old bloom is kept cut off.

They make a magnificent show on a lawn or against a building; in fact, anywhere. Here are what we believe the best kinds. Store, over winter, in any cool place, above freezing temperature.

CUT ON THIS LINE

GET EXTRA ROOTS FREE!

Do not send us a lot of names, promiscuously; but, send us the names (and full addresses) of any and all real Dahlia Buyers you know of. We will card-file these names, with your name as the sender thereof, and will give you free roots of your own selection to an amount equal to one-fourth the value of all orders received from these names during the entire season.

DO WE TREAT OUR CUSTOMERS RIGHT?

The following are only a few of the unsolicited testimonials we receive.

"What other good cut-flower variety have you to compare with Rose Glory? It is one of the best we ever grew." K—— Floral Co., Ark.

"Won Blue Ribbon and cash prize on Wonder Pink at Show." E. R. M., Mo.

"Dahlias received in spring grew 100%; thanks for your good stock." G. & B., Florists, Ill.

"To let you know how we came out at the Show. We had 15 entries, on which 12 first and 2 seconds." J. B. D., Texas

"Just feel I must write and tell you how nice your bulbs and plants wre. They reached me in fine shape. I never received plants packed that way before but none were broken and all in fine shape. I most sincerely thank you for the fine lot of extras." Mrs. J. L. J., Ind.

"The dahlias make a fine display along the roadway. All are from your gardens." Mrs. C. H., Ohio

"If your dahlias bloom as they sprout, I will have the finest garden in Georgia this Fall; not one failed to sprout." M. Dahlia Gardens, Ga.

"Have bought dahlia roots from you for years and always found them satisfactory." T. C. R., N. Mex.

"The dahlias bought from you last spring did so well I have sold many more than I can supply."

W. T. T., Tenn.

"Some friends aroused my interest in your dahlias, —say they can't be beat; so here is my order."

C. M., California

"We have always found your stock true to name and of the highest quality; it is a pleasure to deal with you."

G. F., Kansas

Remember! When you buy our dahlias, grown in POOR soil, without any pampering, you are buying stock which is so hardy it will grow and produce well in any soil with any treatment; but, if you buy roots that have been grown in highly fertilized, irrigated soil (to produce prize-winning blooms of great size), you MUST give them the same high cultivation and pampering or you will probably get no growth, nor bloom.

Our (Only) New Introduction For 1939

MAID OF THE MIST

In Maid of the Mist, we present a most astonishing, unusual and attractive color combination,—orchid lavender in a clear bright shade; on every bloom produced in its four years of existence there has always appeared one or more stripes or blotches of strong Cadmium (dark, clear) yellow! Just imagine this if you can.

The usual bloom has a number of such stripes and all visitors have exclaimed admiringly on seeing it. We should ask at least $10.00 for this, but owing to our adherence in the prices of this 25th Anniversary catalogue, we will put the price at $5.00 per root; $2.50 per plant! As per usual, we have never entered this in competition anywhere, so we do not claim any prizes, but we will sell it to you on our Money back basis, which is simply that if you are not delighted with it, return the clump to us and we will cheerfully return the price paid. It is Inf. Dec. size about 9x5 inches; has a good stem, healthy growth and good root. If you want something entirely novel and beautiful, buy this; if you don't like it, your money back.

We regret to say that the wet season of 1938 caused us the complete loss of some 50 varieties, among which were our "War Admiral" and "Phoenix."

Read All Your Catalogue Thoroughly, Before Ordering

We will cheerfully answer any question we can, but many are sent in which, if the customer had read the catalogue thoroughly, would have been answered in it. Read all your catalogue.

To those who have never bought from us: "Welcome!" We know that if you will give our roots a trial you will be delighted with the results and continue one of our many pleased customers. Read the few (of the many thousands of unsolicited) testimonials in this catalogue.

Our roots are grown naturally—no irrigation, no fertilization (except phosphate broadcast in the Fall), no staking, no disbudding, no pampering of any kind; in fact, they are the hardiest to be had and will produce abundantly anywhere. Are guaranteed true to name, also.

We never exhibit, in competition or otherwise; we never practice "high-culture" at any time; we depend on the testimonials and recommendations (always unsolicited) of our many pleased customers, to spread the news, and they do it.

If you can give your catalog to an interested friend, send us (on a post-card) the friends name and address; we will gratefully thank you and send you another copy.

DON'T PLANT TOO EARLY! If you do, your plants will be in full bloom during the heated months and by the time you could enjoy the flowers the plants have passed their prime; we have many customers, especially in the extreme south, who do not plant until May 15th to June 1st and claim they have best results by planting late. No dahlias should be planted anywhere until the soil is warm.
